New York Stock Market

New York, July 28.—The reactionary tendency which has characterized operation in the stock market the greater part of the week was displayed again to-day, though to a lesser degree than on the preceding two days. The list moved irregularly in the early session during which time there were several incipient bear raids. Opening prices were generally higher, gains in minor cases being a point or more over yesterday's close. This was a natural sequence to the higher range for American securities in London, where less excitement was felt as to the outcome of the Moreccan negotiations. This better feeling was confirmed by international bankers, whose advices from various continental sources were mostly of a reassuring character.

The improvement of the first hour apparently was used as the basis for the market received.

The improvement of the first hour apparently was used as the basis for heavy selling. The market received slewly, and by noon hearly all early gains were eliminated with a few new low records for the present movement During the remainder of the day the market was slow and dragging, with no changes of importance. The day was without any concrete influence to which the market's action was directly traceable. Relief over the apparent lessening of tension among the European powers was relected chiefly in relaxation of pressure from abroad. London's transactions here fell to a much smaller basis, with purchases and sales evenly distributed. Conditions at home were virtually unchanged except that there was perhaps a greater degree of uncasiness over the political outlook, which was emphasized by the congressional steel inquiry in this city.

In some quarters there is a disposition to attribute the market's present trend to this and other forms of political activity, which are such as to arrest financial projects of importance.

RICHMOND, VA. Capital One Million WEEKLY COTTON REVIEW

New York, July 28.—Cotton has been depressed by persistent Southern selling of the new crop months on generally improving weather conditions, on the one hand, and has at times shown slight rallies on buying by trade interests and spinners, but the bull support and buying by traders is in favor of an upward reaction, either to create a better selling basis or for other reasons. other reasons.

create a better selling basis or for other reasons.

The net result of the week has been a decilne of seven points on July and sixty-seven to ninety points on other months. Many are awaiting the government report of next week. It is expected to be very favorable by the trade at large, although many claim that the almost perpendicular drop in prices has fully discounted a very bearlish report. A condition of around 31 is generally anticipated. Crop and weather advices in the main have shown distinctive improvement. The expectations of a heavy August movement of new cotton and spot markets in the South have been weak of late, New Orleans, for instance, dropping $\frac{1}{2}$ of a cent on spot cotton in one day. The curtallment of production has shown no abatement, the demand for cotton yarns has been smaller, and spinners in many instances have withdrawn or lowered the limits of their buying orders—in a word, the bears at the moment having the prestige and the advantage.

The continuance of the present gratat the moment having the prestige and the advantage.

The continuance of the present gratifying crop prospects, and with the South steadily selling, many are inclined to look for still lower prices. Yet, with the critical month of August, often fraught with danger to the growing crop, to be passed through, there are those who feel that for the present at least prices have declined enough.

ent at least prices have declined enough.

Then, too, some unfavorable crop reports have come in. Sections of the Mississippi delta, producing some 500,000 bales, have received too much rain and have sent complaints of the boil weevil becoming more numerous.

Reports of the fields becoming grassy and weedy have been received from portions of Alabama; in Southwestern Texas it is said to be too dry, and reports from Northern Georgia are to the effect that the crop in that section will not commence to move as early as had been recently expected. Exporters are rapidly diminishing the New York stock and have also been buying spot cotton in the South Large spot interests and spinners have bought futures to a considerable extent at times. Latterly July has held up on scattered short covering and bull support, while the latter months have continued to decline with the South selling.

Review of Trade.

New York, July 28.—R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade tomorrow will say:

A variety of conflicting developments affect trade conditions, among them the passage of the Canadian reciprocify bill, unsettlement over the outcome of the negotiations touching adjustment of affeirs in Morocco and the decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the Spokane rate and similar cases. These influences, however, are mainly of importance in their relations to the future.

Of more immediate interest, the excellent progress of the cotton crop toward maturity holds first place. Moderate improvement marks conditions in iron and steel, although in Eastern territory pig iron buying is of restricted volume. The best showing is further slight expansion in mill operations.

The primary cotton goods markets.

The primary cotton goods markets are very quiet.

Forward ordering is confined to epecialities and fancies. Jobbers are restrained by cotton crop conditions, and are awaiting the results of retailers' inventories. A further revision of bleached cotton and grain goods has made export shipments light, but still show a good gain over a year ago. A great deal of business is being held back in anticipation of a large cotton crop. In woolens, business has varied much with different houses, and while some sizable orders are reported on better known grades of serges, transactions in many of the fancy lines are very small.

The footwear market continues slow.
